

NEWSLETTER 29: 4 November 2022

Workshop 3 Feedback

Our thanks to all of the Teams for their participation in Workshop 3. It has been insightful and encouraging to see the consistent feedback on the draft White Paper and the positive reception of a larger scale project moving forward. We look forward to unpacking this further during the Roundtables in Melbourne and Copenhagen soon.

Registering for the events in November

We kindly ask, if you are attending either of the Roundtable events, or the additional events in Melbourne during LEARN Week, that you register via Eventbrite (<https://ilesescopingstudy.com.au/index.php/learnweek/#1>). We will need to close registrations to the events shortly (Early in the week of the 7th November) for catering requirements, so we ask that you do this as soon as possible.

Delphi Study progress

The final Delphi panel (academe) has started its verification round. There was 100% consensus between the academic and allied industries panels in terms of the top 5:

- Evaluation of learning environments (first place)
- Design of ILE spaces (second place)
- Hybrid learning environments (third place)
- Academic learning outcomes and assessment (equal fourth place)
- Inclusiveness (equal fourth place)

All three panels (academe, education, allied industries) see evaluation of learning environments, academic learning outcomes and assessment and inclusiveness as being three core priority areas for future research.

We are currently writing the Delphi study report while the academic verification round is underway, and hope to release it soon after this round is completed.
